Leadership – The Essential Edge

The NASULGC Board on Human Sciences and the Council of Administrators of Family and Consumer Sciences will host the 2009 meeting at the Melrose Hotel in Washington, DC from February 25 through February 27, 2009. The conference features inspiring presentations by higher education leaders. Both organizations cordially invite you to join us. They also encourage you to bring associate deans, extension leaders, spouses and other guests.

Program sessions will focus on collaborative partnerships, innovative funding sources, leadership development and higher education issues as context for leadership.

We will be joined by two inspiring keynote speakers Peter McPherson, President of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges and Marshall Stewart from North Carolina State University. Dr. McPherson will discuss higher education trends and issues. Dr. Stewart will be speaking about leadership and advocacy for family and consumer sciences.

Eat Right, Increase Energy: The Essential Edge for Leaders

This may seem paradoxical but overeating tends to cause an energy decrease, not an increase. This presentation gives a humorous, insightful look at what causes overeating and the subsequent lethargy. We postulate that the main cause of over consumption is that we lose track of how much we consume. This program presents techniques used to counteract the influence of food that is everywhere, always available and served in large portions at every meeting we attend.

Presiding: Connor Walters, CAFCS Vice President
Chair, Family and Consumer Sciences

Leadership and Advocacy for Family and Consumer Sciences

The nation faces significant challenges. The economy, education and health are three of the major categories that challenge our youth, families and communities. There has never been a moment in history that the nation needed the expertise of Family & Consumer Sciences (FCS) more than it does now. Public funds will be invested in these critical areas and FCS programs can be a key player in addressing these issues for the nation. Understanding how to navigate the political landscape to best position FCS is more important than ever. This workshop will provide participants with an insider perspective of how to best position FCS in these turbulent, political times.
